

Final Note on Renaming Freight Cars

By Peter Thornton

After trying brake fluid as a paint remover, I was told there were a few products available that didn't attack plastic. So I did what any sensible person would have done (!) and called Dan at Star Hobby. They have "PollyS Easy-Lift-Off" paint and decal remover, which claims to be safe on most metals and plastics.

I tried the PollyS Easy-Lift-Off and it did attack the plastic a little, so be prepared to wash it off as soon as you can get the softened paint/decal off to surface, and spray the car with dull clear laquer/varnish to restore the finish and color of the surface.
